Let us see, O Lord, your mercy and give us your saving help.

Last week we reflected on the arduous role of the prophets. We also considered the possibility that we might be called to bear a burden similar to theirs. Today's readings leave no doubt in our minds. We are all indeed called in some way to "prophesy to my people." We might be startled by this. Our first response might be: Who? Me?—Yes, you!

Paul is high-spirited as he describes the loftiness of our call in Christ. We are blessed, chosen, destined for adoption. We have heard the word of truth, and we have believed. It is now our responsibility to proclaim that truth to others. With the Apostles, we too have been given authority over unclean spirits. We have been commissioned to preach repentance, to drive out demons and to cure the sick. Such details could even startle us more, and we might respond anew: Who? Me? Yes, you and me and every other baptized Christian.

All Christians are called to live their lives with the knowledge that Jesus Christ died for them and was raised. Jesus beckons us to put an end to the thinking that says "What can I do about the dreadful things that are happening in this world? I'm not clever enough, brave enough, I can't speak very well." Every prophet in the history of salvation said the same thing. Today's Gospel calls us to shake off the dust of guilt and resentment; to set out on the new road of conversion, trusting in the love and care of Christ. God put each of us into this world for a purpose: we have to use what we have been given.

If we trust in the Lord and set out on the path that calls us, then the world will not end in doom, but become a glorious reflection of the love of God and the power of the Spirit of the Risen Christ.

God bless, Fr. Rajesh.

Share the Journey with CAFOD

Please join us for our parish Cafod Walking event, taking place on:

Saturday 21st July at 3pm

Meeting point : De la Warr Pavilion Colonnade

Distance : You decide how far

This year, the Holy Father urges us to reach out to our brothers and sisters who are forced to flee their homes. This new campaign is called Share the Journey. You can Share the Journey by joining us on a walk.

Schools, parishes, and local communities across England and Wales, including our own, will be walking to show solidarity with people on the move. Together, we are aiming for 24,900 miles: the distance around the whole world.

CAFOD will use this shared journey to deliver a powerful message to world leaders, who meet in September 2018 to agree two global agreements on refugees and migration.
